<h1 class="motto"> UNLOCK ANY ROAD </h1>

<h2 class="description"> Overview </h2>

The soul of a super sports car and the functionality of an SUV: Lamborghini Urus is the first Super Sport Utility Vehicle in the world.

With extreme proportions, breathtaking design, extraordinary driving dynamics and heart-pounding performance, Urus represents freedom in its quintessential state.

You can experience any road, from track to the sand, ice, gravel or rocks, thus unlocking any road. You can explore any new terrain, thus expressing yourself.

<h2 class="description"> Exterior </h2>

Its design assumes multiple guises: sporty, elegant and off-road. Muscular surfaces lend a decisive appearance, while the massive tires and wheels impart the look of a luxury super sports car.

Every surface places a focus on functionality. The signature style of Lamborghini is immediately recognizable, with details such as Y-shaped and hexagonal details, the front hood with center peak, and the crossed lines on the rear hood. Urus is the lowest SUV in its segment.

<h2 class="description"> Interior </h2>

The luxury of Italian craftsmanship meets state-of-the-art technology. Aerospace-inspired design and driver-oriented instrumentation, featuring three TFT screens, make the driving experience more comfortable and engaging.

The interior can be customized and made even more sporty or elegant, thanks to the wide range of colors and materials: leather, Alcantara, wood, aluminum or carbon-fiber finishes.

        Lamborghini takes a giant leap ahead and changes the way we look at SUVs with the launch of the Urus.

Named after a species of wild Ox that predates the modern domestic cattle, the Urus is Lamborghini's second SUV that comes nearly 25 years after their first SUV, the LM002, went out of production.

It is based on the same MLB Evo platform as the Porsche Cayenne, Bentley Bentayga and the Audi Q7 under the VW Group umbrella.

<h2 class="description"> Interior </h2>

The Urus SUV gets everything that one could expect from a Lamborghini. Although highly customisable, the cabin is sporty and functional.

There are two digital screens on the centre console, while instrument cluster is all-digital too. The fighter-jet-style ANIMA drive selector has five driving modes – Strada, Sport, Corsa, Sabbia (sand), Terra (land), and Neve (snow).

Of these, the last three are seen for the first time in a car from Sant'Agata Bolognese. Although the Urus is a proper four-seater, the SUV can be had with a five-seat configuration as well with 18-way adjustable seats, ISOFIX, and sunroof.

The Urus has a 616 litres boot space which can be extended to 1,596 litres.

<h2 class="description"> Exterior </h2>

Lamborghini Urus has every bit of the supercar DNA with all those chiseled creases and in-your-face styling. The SUV flaunts flared wheel arches with body claddings all around and massive 23-inch wheels (largest in its segment) wrapped in bespoke Pirellis.

Moreover, the Urus gets the biggest brakes ever fitted on a production SUV.

<h2 class="description"> Engine </h2>

Mechanically, the Urus is powered by a 4.0-litre turbocharged V8 that generates a massive 650bhp of power at 6,000rpm and 850Nm of turning force accessible from as low as 2250rpm.

The Italian SUV is capable of sprinting from 0-100kmph in a sportscar-shaming 3.6 seconds and on to a top whack of 305kmph making it the fastest SUV on sale today.

Transmission is an eight-speed automatic sending power to all four wheels through Tamburo – Lamborghini’s dynamic control.

Summary

Lamborghini takes a giant leap ahead and changes the way we look at SUVs with the launch of the Urus. Named after a species of wild Ox that predated the modern domestic cattle, the Urus is Lamborghini's second SUV that comes nearly 25 years after their first SUV, the LM002, went out of production. It is based on the same MLB Evo platform as the Porsche Cayenne, Bentley Bentayga and the Audi Q7 under the VW Group umbrella.

Interior

The Urus SUV gets everything that one could expect from a Lamborghini. Although highly customisable, the cabin is sporty and functional. There are two digital screens on the centre console, while instrument cluster is all-digital too. The fighter-jet-style ANIMA drive selector has five driving modes – Strada, Sport, Corsa, Sabbia (sand), Terra (land), and Neve (snow). Of these, the last three are seen for the first time in a car from Sant'Agata Bolognese. Although the Urus is a proper four-seater, the SUV can be had with a five-seat configuration as well with 18-way adjustable seats, ISOFIX, and sunroof. The Urus has a 616 litres boot space which can be extended to 1,596 litres.

Exterior

Lamborghini Urus has every bit of the supercar DNA with all those chiseled creases and in-your-face styling. The SUV flaunts flared wheel arches with body claddings all around and massive 23-inch wheels (largest in its segment) wrapped in bespoke Pirellis. Moreover, the Urus gets the biggest brakes ever fitted on a production SUV.

Engine

Mechanically, the Urus is powered by a 4.0-litre turbocharged V8 that generates a massive 650bhp of power at 6,000rpm and 850Nm of turning force accessible from as low as 2250rpm. The Italian SUV is capable of sprinting from 0-100kmph in a sportscar-shaming 3.6 seconds and on to a top whack of 305kmph making it the fastest SUV on sale today. Transmission is an eight-speed automatic sending power to all four wheels through Tamburo – Lamborghini's dynamic control.
